

ETHNIC STUDIES

A course for students interested in race and ethnic relations.

This is a ½ credit social studies elective.

Ethnic Studies Course Description

Description: This course is offered to students interested in studying American ethnic and racial history and contemporary social issues. The role of gender will be considered in the study of these groups.

Ethnic Studies Course Description

Students will become familiar with the background, culture, contributions, and achievements of minority groups in America. Students will also investigate the prejudice, discrimination, and oppression that each group has endured and efforts to address this treatment.

Ethnic Studies Course Description

Students will discuss and debate current topics, including, but not limited to, ethnic stereotypes, affirmative action, immigration, racial profiling, hate crimes, and sexism. Students will gain a new perspective of themselves and others and discuss issues that are relevant to the ever-changing world today.
